THE RISEN LORD AND THE GREAT COMMISSION

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore and teach all nations.—Matthew 28:19.

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 28:1-20.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Carrying Jesus' Work.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Our Marching Orders.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Marching Orders.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Great Commission.

I. The Empty Sepulchre (vv. 1-7).

1. The resurrection (vv. 1-4). This occurred when the glorious angel descended from heaven to roll the stone away from the tomb. This work of the angel was not to allow Jesus to escape, but to show that the tomb was empty. Christ needed not even the help of the angel, for He came forth from the grave by His own power as the seal of His atoning work on the cross (Rom. 1:4). The open tomb and the angel sitting upon the stone with calm dignity, is a graphic picture of Christ's triumph over the devil, and the terror of the keepers is a sample of what all of Christ's enemies shall one day experience when He comes in glory to reign as King.

2. The angel's message to the women (vv. 5-7).

(1) Fear not (v. 5). While the enemies had occasion to fear, these women who loved the Lord received good news from the empty tomb. The empty tomb puts an end forever to all doubts and fears. Let every teacher endeavor to show the greatness of the fact that the tomb was empty, for it shows that we have a living Christ. The resurrection of Christ should be the major theme of those who give out the Christian message. (2) "Come, see" (v. 6). The angel told the women that the Lord had risen and invited them to see the place where He lay. The Lord made special effort to convince the disciples of the reality of His resurrection. He remained with them for forty days, giving them many "infallible proofs." (3) "Go quickly" (v. 7). Having seen for themselves, their responsibility was to go and tell the message. Experience is necessary before testimony. They were to go quickly to the disciples with the message, assured that the Lord would go before and meet them.

II. The Risen Lord Meets the Women (vv. 8-10).

The women quickly obeyed the command of the angel, and were running to bring word to the disciples. Jesus met them on the way. Those who have an experimental knowledge of Christ should go speedily to tell others of it. When they saw Jesus—that He was really the Lord—they worshiped Him.

III. Paying Money to Circulate a Lie (vv. 11-15).

That Jesus arose from the dead could not be denied even by the Sanhedrin. They saw only one way out of the difficulty; that was to bribe the keepers to tell a lie. They had paid money for His betrayal—now they paid more money to circulate a lie about His resurrection. This shows the wonderful power that money has over the lives and consciences of men. It not only induces people to lie, but it even muzzles the mouths of some teachers and preachers.

IV. The King's Great Commission (vv. 16-20).

1. The royal authority (v. 18). By virtue of His divine authority, He issued this command to the disciples. In order to prepare them for the reception of this command, He declared unto them that all power in heaven and earth had been given unto Him.

2. The commission itself (vv. 19, 20).

It consists of three parts. (1) Go teach all nations. This is the first and primary business of the disciple. This command has been issued to all disciples by the risen and mighty Lord. (2) Baptize them in the name of the triune God. Those who have become disciples of the Lord should receive the rite which signifies that relationship to Him. (3) Teach them to observe all of Christ's commandments (v. 20). Those who have become Christ's disciples should be taught conformity to His will.

3. The available power (v. 2).

Those who obey Christ in carrying out this commission shall enjoy His abiding presence.

Prayer the Golden Key

Prayer is a golden key which should open the morning and lock up the evening.—Bishop Hopkins.

Making Short Cuts

There are plenty of short cuts across corners that one can make in life, in education, in business, in politics, in religion. But there is really no short cut to any promised land.—Edgar Whitaker Work, D. D.

Should Have Jesus With Us

What lessons the sea teaches us. It is calm like life at times, then stormy, also like life, causing shipwrecks. If we sail life's sea, we should have Jesus with us in the ship.—Morris Martin.

Mother

It was first on her loving face
My infant eyes did rest,
As I laid my little head
Upon her loving breast.
It was Mother's name
First my tongue did speak,
It was her loving face
My eyes first would seek.

It was Mother's hands that bathed me,
And combed my little head,
And taught me to say—
"Now I lay me down to sleep"
Before I went to bed.
It was Mother who taught me
of Jesus,
And his never dying love,
And told me of his mansion
Where he reigns up above.

It was Mother who taught me
to love Jesus,
With a heart that is brave,
and free
That I may hear the golden bells,
As they ring from o'er the lea.
Calling me from this world
To that mansion in the sky
Where there will be no sickness, nor sorrow,
And we'll never say "Good bye."

She bore the burdens of life
She carried her cross with a smile,
She lived a life for Jesus
The only life that's worth while.
She read her Bible daily
She was true to God and man
She won the prize God offered,
A long life in this land.

She lived to the age of eighty,
And then one lonely night
She laid her cross at Jesus feet,
And her spirit took it's flight.
She's gone to reap the reward
God offered unto man,
Everlasting life beyond the skies,
If we are faithful to the end.

When I think of all of this,
My heart doth swell with joy
I praise the God who reigns above
For making me her boy.
I will follow in her foot steps,
The paths which she, has trod,
For I know when it leadeth to
the end,
I'll rest in peace with God.

Bent Creek

Most of our farmers have finished planting tabacco, those who watered and planted before the recent rain seem highly pleased and say it is growing nicely.

Some have commenced cutting wheat; the crop will be short in this section owing to so much dry weather.

Mr. Saul McCormick who has been ill for several months is worse at this writing.

Little Mary Phelps, who lives at her grand-fathers, E. W. McCormick, has pneumonia, she is a bright little girl and her friends are anxious about her.

Miss Mary Marks, of Madison Heights, "Aunt Sis" as she is called by most of her friends, is visiting at Bent Creek now.

W. H. Marks, Jr., Geo. F. Langran, Jr., Mrs. E. Botton and Misses Louise and Mildred Duvale motored to Richmond Monday.

We hear that Mrs. K. H. Smith is at her home, River Bluff, for the summer.

The garage at Bent Creek, now open, will be known as the Bent Creek Motor Co; W. M. Moore, of Clifford, Va., has it in charge. He is ready and on the job with skill and repairs for all kinds of cars. If in need of service while in this section, please give him a trial.

MAY EXHUME ROYAL BODIES DEAD YEARS

Seek Truth of 41-Year-Old Austrian Tragedy.

Vienna.—Recent reports here have summoned from the past the ghosts of a mysterious woman who died for love as truly as did Paolo and Francesca. They were both members of the grandest aristocracy in Europe, that of Austria, and one was the Crown Prince Rudolph, son of Francis Joseph and Empress Elizabeth.

According to news dispatches, there is a movement on foot to exhume the bodies of these lovers to be exhumed in order to find out whether they committed suicide or were murdered, as was charged by enemies of the monarchy.

The story of the crown prince and the young Baroness Vetsera (she was only sixteen years old at the time) is a strangely moving one, which has inspired many tears and much political recrimination. Were they killed by order of the politicians surrounding Francis Joseph? Did the emperor himself have a hand in it? Or, departing ever being united with the chosen bride of his heart, did Rudolph shoot her and then turn the pistol against himself?

Meets Baroness.

Crown Prince Rudolph was a handsome man about town in the Vienna of the eighties. He had a literary turn, but it was beneath the dignity of the crown prince to be a writer, to be an amateur journalist. So Rudolph turned his attention to light love and sport. Then one day he met the beautiful Baroness Mary Vetsera, one of this aristocratic creatures. Karl Tschuppik, in his recent biography of the Empress Elizabeth, writes as follows:

"The baroness' mother had, since her husband's death, lived in Vienna with her two daughters in one of the imposing houses in the ambassadors' quarter, the Salesianergasse. The family was connected with the aristocracy and the house was much frequented by sporting young cavalry officers. The baroness had several brothers, well connected. With the help of her popular brothers the young beauty found it easy to make a figure in society. The women of the Viennese aristocracy were held to be the most beautiful in Europe. Mary Vetsera was unusually clever and lovely."

Love at First Sight.

It was a case of love at first sight when the young people met at a party. Rudolph's notice and that news were quickly carried to the emperor. He frowned and disapproved. He sated several days later to see his son. The crown prince during that interview confessed his love for the beautiful young girl, who had already come to visit him in his apartment, stealing away secretly from her mother and her brothers. The emperor commanded him not to see the young woman again.

The next day, Monday, January 28, 1889, the crown prince took the train to Baden, and thence drove to Mayerling. He awaited a visit from Mary. It came. On Wednesday the empress, expecting a visit from her son, received instead the intelligence that Rudolph and his mistress had been found dead of the hunting lodge at Mayerling. She had been shot and he clasped a pistol in his dead hand. Elizabeth, after debating with herself for several agonizing hours, left her apartments and told the emperor the terrible news.

There is no doubt that Francis Joseph and his court disapproved of this love affair. So did Mary Vetsera's brothers. But who killed the young couple, if they were killed? The court clique or the baroness' brothers? Or, is it true, as the official account has it, that they died willingly as the only way out?

This is what the exhumation is intended to show.

Jerry Knows the Way to Meal and Lodging

Toronto, Ont.—Jerry Donohue gets what he wants.

He wanted a full meal and comfortable lodging, and applied for it at a police station here. The police sergeant said he was sorry, but they could not oblige him, they said.

Jerry wasn't discouraged. "All right," he threatened, "I'll smash every window in the joint." The officers ushered him out.

A few minutes later he returned with a brick in each hand.

His threats worked. The police changed him with vagrancy and gave him two weeks' board free.

LONE ACE SAVES THRONE FOR KING

Frenchman Takes on Little Job in Ethiopia.

Paris.—If truth is not stranger than fiction, then R. H. Davis, G. Hisey et al will be more turning in their graves when they hear of Antoine Maillet, the only man on record who ever defeated an army single handed. Some weeks ago, Maillet, a French war ace, undertook a little job for King Tafari Makonen of Ethiopia.

It seems that a certain Ras Gugsa Olle, a former husband of the former Empress Judith, craved to be king and with that end in view drew up somewhat of an army which offered battle to the loyal troops not far from Addis Ababa, the capital. The king asked Maillet what he could do, and Maillet said he would try.

A few days later the intrepid flyer took out over the lonely mountains and treacherous ravines not to mention the impassable jungles to find forests teeming with lions, elephants, crocodiles, boas, leopards, panthers and hyenas. He had not finished the enemy he dropped his majesty's regards, those who were not killed ran.

The king, learning of the news, was overcome with remorse at the demise of Olle, and nevertheless a reception befitting a hero was prepared at Addis Ababa for Maillet, who returned victorious, and one was the Crown Prince Rudolph, son of Francis Joseph and Empress Elizabeth.

According to news dispatches, there is a movement on foot to exhume the bodies of these lovers to be exhumed in order to find out whether they committed suicide or were murdered, as was charged by enemies of the monarchy.

Only American Bills, So He Threw Them Away

Paris.—Young Americans don't have nearly as bright a fellow as he had thought. Employed as a plumber's assistant, he chanced at work in the home of an American family resident here, and while fixing the bathroom saw a pocketbook stuffed in a corner of the divan. He took the pocketbook, but did not immediately investigate the contents till he got home. Then he discovered, to his disgust, that inside the pocketbook were not honest francs but strange pieces of paper colored green and black, with cabalistic signs all over them in script he did not understand. So young Mr. Bapret threw them in the wastebasket.

When the police came they retrieved $25 in American bills and led Mr. Bapret to the nearest police station, where his future instruction ought to include some details of financial exchange.

Scientist Finds There Are 57 Varieties of "It"

Cleveland—The following facts about "It"—more soberly known as "personality"—were revealed here in the annual report of Dr. Henry C. Schumann, directing psychiatrist of the Child Guidance clinic:

There are 57 varieties of "It."

The lack of any one of them may make a psychological problem of a child.

Of the 1,112 abnormal children observed in the clinic last year all lacked one or more of the 57 varieties.

Famous personalities, "people you like to know," are that way because they have all the 57 varieties in the best proportions.

Constipation Troubles

"I HAVE used Black-Draught as a family medicine for a good many years," says Mrs. Della Laughrun, of Huntdale, N. C. "I have found it an excellent remedy for constipation and the troubles that follow it. I have suffered frequently from gas pains, and when I am bothered that way I begin at once to take Black-Draught. Relief follows quickly. I give Black-Draught to the children when they are constipated, and it is not long until they are running around again."

Thousands of others have reported good results from the use of this purely vegetable medicine. Insist on the genuine Thedford's Black-Draught.

Lynchburg Rotarians at Appomattox.

The Rotary Club of Lynchburg gave a delightful supper and program at the surrender grounds Tuesday evening. The supper was served by the local chapter U. D. C. The Rotarians had as their guests the representative men of Appomattox and their wives. The Rotarians brought with them their wives and sweethearts. After a delicious supper the program was rendered by the Rotary Club. The chairman of the evening was Mr. Cartledge. A most amusing and clever toast was given the occasion by Dean McPherson, of Lynchburg College. Mrs. Dot' Woodson responded. This was followed by a speech by Harry Hancock, ex former Appomattox man. It was a message of welcome to their guests and a history of what Rotary means. To this J. A. Burke responded with a splendid address. Kit Castle, of Lynchburg, then gave more information regarding the Rotary Club The last thing on the program and this was most fitting, was a tribute to Lee by Mrs. Jim Scott. Throughout the evening the Twilight Singers, Negro quartet rendered spirituals and folk songs that charmed their audience.

Senator Ferguson presented one of the beautiful govels made of walnut from surrender grounds trees. J. H. Johnson, of Michigan, rendered several selections on his banjo.

The decorations were baskets of cut flowers, which dotted the lawn of S. A. Ferguson where the banquet was held.

There were many distinguished business men of the Hill City present, and all had a pleasant evening and the hope is that these gentlemen and ladies will visit us again.

There is some desire to organize a Rotary Club at Appomattox.

The Way to Do It

If I were about to begin my career over again, I'd go into the restaurant business and adopt the same sort of economizing that maestros of the movie mosques have developed. I'd do everything with a flourish. I'd put the ides late last night, as I was leaving a motion picture performance. In the large, over-decorated lobby were a dozen brass posts with connecting cords, which had been used earlier in the evening to keep the customers in line. It was nearly closing time, and the posts were of no use. So they were removed as I was passing out, but no stooky porter did the trick. Instead, six smartly uniformed ushers lined up, and a corporal or general or something in the usher army called: "Forward! One-two! One-two" and the posts were out, and I felt that I had been privileged to see a great performance.

Well, as I was saying, I'd have food served in the same manner, and dancing girls.

Detroit Traffic Towing Crews Do Big Business

Detroit.—Towing in cars left too long in restricted districts have proved a profitable occupation for police as well as private concerns under contract to do the work.

In a six-month period 90,000 cars were towed to various pounds. Police cars hauled away 26,000 of them. Private tow companies handled the others at $1 a car. It costs the unlucky motorist $3 to redeem his car from a pound.

Congress Overrides Hoover Veto of Spanish War Pension Measure.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PRESIDENT HOOVER is not having a pleasant time with a congress whose mind is to a considerable extent fixed on the chances of reelection next fall. The majority in both houses is Republican but it isn't always "administration," especially when being so might cost some votes at the polls.

This condition was illustrated last week when congress overrode the President's veto of the Spanish war veterans' pension bill. In repassing the measure the senate voted 61 to 18 against Hoover, and those for the bill included 28 Republicans, 32 Democrats and one Farmer-Labor member. Only 14 members of the lower house, all Republicans, voted to sustain the veto, with 298 against it.

Vetoing any pension bill is painful for a President, and in this case Mr. Hoover displayed courage. His three objections to the measure were made by the press of the country for the most part to be worn afterward. He insisted "that this singling out of myself and of the Virginia anti-Smith Democrats because we fought the anti-Tammany candidate is a deliberate, intentional discrimination against men of American citizens, and is a threat to independent citizens against a repetition of the independent action of 1928."

The bishop also told the press much about the disposal of money contributed by Mr. Jameson of New York for the anti-Smith campaign in Virginia—information he had refused to give the committee.

Senator Caraway, chairman of the committee, who was in Arkansas at the time, issued a statement upholding the bishop's stand and denying that the committee had a right to inquire into Cannon's political activities. The investigation was being conducted by Senators Walsh of Montana and Blaine of Wisconsin.

Senator Blaine Cannon repeatedly refused to answer the committee's questions, and then coolly walked out of the room without waiting to be excused. He was done, he said, unless the committee wished to subpoena him.

"If the bishop's defiance yesterday was not contempt, and I think it was, his action today is certainly a clear case of 'contempt,'" declared Walsh, whose opinion was echoed by a number of senators. The summary of Cannon probably will be reported to the senate with a request for contempt proceedings.

ONE more step in the President's dry enforcement program was taken when the house, by a vote of 218 to 117, passed the Wickersham bill designed to relieve congestion in the federal courts by abolishing jury trials in minor prohibition cases.

If it becomes law the measure will radically revise the federal court procedure in criminal cases extant for more than a hundred years. It provides that defendants charged with "petty offenses" shall first be given a hearing before a United States commissioner whose recommendations shall go to the District Judge for final disposition. The accused will be given a jury trial only if he demands it in a specified manner and time limit.

The house ago adopted bills supplemental to the Jarjues trial dismiss, one of them defining as "petty offenses" all crimes involving a jail sentence of less than six months or a fine of less than $500, and another amending the Jones act to make the manufacture, transportation or sale of less than one gallon or liquor a "petty offense."

The Democratic party of Pennsylvania is now officially wet. The state committee, which was reorganized at Harrisburg, adopted a platform that recommends the repeal of the state enforcement act and the Volstead act and removal of the Eighteenth amendment from the federal Constitution.

THE French chamber of deputies opened its summer session last week with the opposition members ready with a flock of interpellations. Among the things they wanted the government to explain were the naval treaty, the serious Red revolt against French rule in Indo-China, the Saar security and an oil scandal that has involved Andre Tardieu. It is said to be predicted in Paris that the Tardieu cabinet would not survive the summer.

IF THERE is a naval building race between France and Italy the blame must rest with France, according to Foreign Secretary Dino Grandi of Italy. In a speech before the senate Grandi said that last month in Geneva he proposed to Premier Briand that the two nations suspend their naval construction program for 1930 and that the French foreign minister refused to consider the proposition. The senate thereupon approved the government's policy of augmenting the Italian navy. Several of the senators declared the Mediterranean must be the theater of the next European war.

Recently Premier Tardieu announced that the French would expend large sums for fortifications in the Alps, in reply, Senator Ricci of Italy urged the immediate strengthening of the Italian frontier defenses in that region. Three questions divide France and Italy today, continued Senator Ricci. They are, first, control of the Adriatic; second, the status of Italians in Tunis, and third, the southern frontier of Libya. He repeated the oft heard charges that France was pouring arms and military supplies into Jugo-Slav ports.
